Roosevelt Spends Day in Viewing Attractions of Big Exposition

San Francisco, July 22.—Colonel Roosevelt saw the Panama-Pacific exposition today and great crowds which thronged the grounds went out to see the colonel.

Having paused the pacifists, read those who would sing "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier" out of the great American family and urged a greater standing army universal military service and an efficient navy at "fighting pitch," the former president gave himself over to viewing the wonders of the big fair today. He requested that his program while here be so arranged that he could devote two full days to visiting the various palaces and foreign buildings of the exposition. He was early today to start his first day and plunged into the job of seeing as much as possible with as much vigor as he assailed those who would "Cainify the United States" in his address on "War and Peace" yesterday.

The colonel was escorted through the various buildings by Dr. Frederick J. V. Skiff, director in chief of the exposition, and Captain A. C. Baker, chief of exhibits. At noon he was the guest of President Moore and directors of the exposition at a luncheon in the California building.

Colonel Roosevelt has lived up to his reputation as the country's most strenuous citizen on his visit here. He has dodged his secretary and official committees to take flying automobile rides in the morning, escort Mrs. Roosevelt on shopping tours, and even visit the exposition incognito on the first night after his arrival. He has lost none of his ability to keep up a running fire of snappy comment, whether delivering a speech pronouncing doctrines as to preparedness for war or planting a tree in front of the Enlisted Men's club of the army and navy.

"Movie" operators were on the job to catch every move of the colonel yesterday. He posed for them before the Enlisted Men's club and when he thought he had been "filmed" enough, commanded:

"Gentlemen, cease firing."

He refused to hold a shovel full of dirt during the process of planting the tree that it might be filmed in detail. When the request was made he snapped:

"I will not. The next thing I know you will want me to use my hat."

While addressing the army and navy men, denouncing the pacifists the colonel suddenly turned to Governor Johnson, grasped him by the coat tail, and snapped:

"Governor, I believe these people are getting what I am trying to tell them."

John Austin Hooper Denies Committing Numerous Crimes

Portland, Or., July 22.—Admitting that he broke parole from the Polson penitentiary but denying that he committed any of the numerous robberies in the northwest with which the authorities are trying to connect him, John Austin Hooper was taken to Grants Pass at noon today in the custody of Sheriff Smith of Josephine county.

Hooper was arrested in The Dalles Tuesday and brought to Portland Wednesday, spending last night in jail here.

The prisoner is accused of holding up the State bank at Rogue River several months ago in which $1,800 was secured after the cashier was blinded with ammonia.

If enough evidence can be secured Hooper will be tried at Grants Pass for this crime, otherwise he will be returned to Polson prison to resume serving out a life sentence. He was convicted in California of being an habitual criminal.

Among the other crimes of which Hooper is accused are:

Two street car robberies in the vicinity of Portland; robbery of a general merchandise store at Hornbrook, Cal., in which $600 in gold dust was secured; theft of two horses at Weed, Cal.; attempted robbery of a train at Sedro-Woolley, Wash.

Defense of Bursell Finished Testimony band and the latter then said to Bursell: "The next time I'll fix you."

"I went on down to Cox's and was returning home when Zimmerman headed me off in the road. He looked vicious and I told him to go back. He was about 10 feet away and he kept coming toward me. When about three feet away I fired with the rifle. He wrenched the gun from my hands and raised it over his shoulder to strike me. I jumped back and started to run and went about 15 or 20 yards down the road with Zimmerman at my heels. I reached in my pocket for the .32 automatic pistol and turned and fired. It did not seem to stop him and I ran again. He kept coming right after me and I turned and fired again.

"I do not know how many times I fired and did not know I had hit him until he turned to the left and leaned against the fence I fired again and he dropped the rifle. That's all there was to it."

On cross-examination Bursell said he did not fire the pistol until he heard Zimmerman creak the .22 rifle as if trying to shoot it. He said he never threatened Mrs. Zimmerman or told her he wanted to see Zimmerman dead. Bursell was kept on the stand in giving his direct testimony and on cross-examination until court adjourned at 6 o'clock.

Fighting Fire Blight in Marion County

The following circular letter has been issued by C. O. Constable, county fruit inspector, who is working with the county court to do what they can to make a fight against the fire blight, which threatens the fruit trees, not only of Marion county, but Polk, and those counties adjoining on the north and south.

Your attention is called to the fact that fire blight, the most destructive of all apple and pear diseases, has recently made its appearance in Marion county. You are asked to join with the people of this county in a determined effort to stamp out the disease at once. The county court appreciates the seriousness of the situation and has promised its assistance to the farmers and fruit growers in this fight. Your fruit inspector is now devoting his entire time in an effort to discover the localities in which fire blight is present, and to assist the growers in eradicating it from such places.

You can secure aid for yourself and help in this work, which is being done for the whole county, if you will make a search for possible cases of fire blight among the quinces, pears, apples, service berries, hawthorns, wild crabapple, etc., on or near your place, and send suspicious-looking branches to the inspector. He will have them identified, and if blight is proved, he will visit your place as soon as possible and advise you how to get rid of it in the most possible way without the danger of spreading such a contagious and extremely virulent disease as the blight may easily be spread by one who does not know the disease and how to handle it.

Look for scattered dead branches, shoots or spurs, with leaves that look as though searched still hanging on them. On such blighted parts the bark is dark colored and sometimes milky drops of ooze containing countless bacteria appear on the surface where they harden. Large dead spots, or cankers, are sometimes found on the body and limbs. In the present outbreak the quince is most commonly attacked, but the blight occurs also on apple and pear, as well as on service berry, hawthorn, and other wild trees of the apple family. Insects are the disseminators of the disease.

The purpose of this campaign, in which you are asked to co-operate, is to eradicate the present outbreak and to protect you and others from the tremendous losses which have always followed wherever fire blight has gained headway.

Send in your suspicious specimens at once so if blight is present on your place, or close by, you may be protected against its further spread. Make use of your fruit inspector.

Remington-UMC

—the Deliberate Choice of the Great Body of American Sportsmen

Nowhere else in the whole field of sport do you find the like of the strong public opinion in favor of Remington-UMC.

This Remington-UMC public opinion has been growing for ninety-nine years. Partly it is due to the achievements of Remington-UMC in the design or construction of Arms and Ammunition. But back of these achievements stands the fact that your American is the most practical-minded sportsman in the world —and the most loyal to the arms and ammunition that give him the service he knows he ought to have.

He it is who is holding up the hands of the Remington-UMC dealer—making the Red Ball Mark of Remington-UMC the Sign of Sportsmen's Headquarters in your town.

SCENE FROM "THE DARKENING TRAIL"

FOUR-PART MUTUAL MASTERPIECE

PRODUCED BY NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

Up in the Alaska country the arrival of a boat is an event, and this has never been more graphically illustrated than in the scenes in the four-part Mutual Masterpiece, "The Darkening Trail," showing the steamer's arrival at the town of Good Hope. People swarm down to the docks and up the gangplank. All the news from the world lying beyond the confines of the White Silence is eagerly requested, and all in all the depiction is so humanly alive that the spectator feels himself almost a part of that which is being shown before him. "The Darkening Trail" will be shown at the Bligh theatre today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Portland, Ore., July 22.—To be lost on the slopes of Mount Shasta from 4 o'clock Monday afternoon until 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, was the experience of Dorr Vile, attorney of Buffalo, N. Y., according to word received here today.

Vile was a member of a party of Mazamas, a mountain climbing club of below.

After hours of exertion he reached the Mazama camp exhausted.

Unable to get his bearings he again ascended the peak and upon reaching the snow line saw camp fires in the valley searching for him.
